Cochran, Brown to Speak at Annual Alumni Meeting

Jacqueline Cochran, world-famous aviatrix and recently elected member of the University's Board of Trustees, and John A. Brown, Jr., the University's new Vice President for Plans and Resources, will address the Annual Meeting of the General Alumni Association on Thursday, May 9, at The Skyline Inn, South Capitol and Eye Streets, in Southwest Washington, it was announced by GAA President J. Frank Doubleday.

Miss Cochran holds many aviation speed records, and has been awarded more medals, citations, and honors than any other woman flyer in the world. She is the head of a large cosmetic manufacturing firm, and has twice been chosen Woman of the Year for Business by the Associated Press.

Mr. Brown came to the University in February, having previously served as Vice President of Occidental College in Los Angeles and Assistant to the President for Development at Temple University in Philadelphia. He taught at both Temple and Princeton. He is the creator of the award-winning CBS radio program, "Governments of Man."

Included in the program for the evening will be the presentation of six Alumni Service Awards.

Citations will also be presented to those members of the faculty who will complete 25 years' service to the Uni-

Butler Named Trustee

Butler

George A. Butler, Houston, Tex., lawyer and businessman, was elected to membership on the University's Board of Trustees in March.

Mr. Butler, who received his Bachelor of Laws degree from National University in 1925, is senior partner and founder of the law firm of Butler, Binion, Rice & Cook in Houston. He is Chairman of the Board of the Bank of Texas, Chairman of the Board of Gulf-Southwest Capital Corporation, and President of Houston Corporation. He is also a Director of American General Insurance Company, Braniff Airways, Inc., Longhorn Portland Cement Company, Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, and the Houston Post.

Mr. Butler has long been active in city, state, and national civic affairs. He has served as President of the Houston YMCA, Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, Chairman of the United War Chest of Texas, Member of the Board of the National War Fund during World War II, and Chairman of the Houston Community Chest. He presently serves as Trustee of the Southwestern Legal Foundation, the University of Houston Law Foundation, and the Grand Central Art Galleries of New York City.

Dr. Hamblin to be Education Dean

Hamblin

Francis N. Hamblin, Dean of the College of Education at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, has been named to succeed James Harold Fox as Dean of the University's School of Education. He will begin his duties August 15 of this year.

Dr. Fox resigned from the position for reasons of health but will continue to serve on the University's faculty. He had served as Dean since 1937.

Dr. Hamblin, who is a native of Lexington, Mass., is a graduate of Amherst College. He received his Master's and Doctor's degrees from the Harvard Graduate School of Education.

During World War II, he served for three years with the United States Army in Europe and Africa. Before and after the war, he worked at the elementary and secondary school level in private institutions in the southwestern part of the United States.

From 1948 to 1953, he was Registrar at the University of Vermont, and he served as Executive Director of the United States Educational Foundation in Athens, Greece, before joining the Ohio University staff in 1955.

As Dean of Ohio University's College of Education, Dr. Hamblin has been instrumental in establishing cooperative programs of teacher education in countries of Africa and Asia. These programs have been developed in cooperation with the International Cooperation Administration, the Agency for International Development, and the Peace Corps. One of the principal programs is in Nigeria, where some 18 Ohio University faculty members are engaged in teacher education programs.

Dr. Hamblin is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Kappa Delta Phi, and Phi Delta Kappa, and is on the board of What's New in Your University . . .

Three specialists from Argentina, Mexico, and Brazil will discuss Current Developments in Antitrust and Trade Practice Laws and Policy in Latin America and their relation to Industrial Property Rights on Thursday evening, May 23, at the University's Lisner Auditorium. This is the fifth in a series of public lectures sponsored by the University's Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation. Previous speakers have included representatives from the European Economic Community, Great Britain, and Japan. The public is admitted free of charge to these lectures. For reservations, write or call the office of the Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation, FE 8-0250, ext. 535.

Denis W. Brogan, British political scientist, author, and cultural and social historian on the United States, was in residence at the University during the first ten days of April. Dr. Brogan's visit was sponsored jointly by the University and the Institute of Contemporary Arts. He delivered five lectures and participated in four discussion groups while in residence. Dr. Brogan's subjects covered a wide range of topics on the United States, including political parties, education, social institutions, and the progressive movement.

Students, faculty, alumni, and their families are invited to attend the annual Colonial Cruise on Saturday, May 4. The boat will leave in early afternoon for Marshall Hall for picnicking and recreational activities. Return trips are scheduled for late afternoon and early evening. The University's Student Activities Office will provide further information for those interested in participating.

Woodrow Wilson Fellowships were awarded recently to three University seniors: Stephen Brown, Zoology major; Linda Nusbaum, American Thought and Civilization major; and Stanley Remsberg, International Affairs major. Wilson Fellowships, which are awarded to promising college seniors who plan to pursue a career in college teaching, provide $1,500 plus tuition costs and dependency allowances for a year of graduate study. Mr. Brown, who also received a National Science Foundation scholarship, will choose the latter in preference to the Woodrow Wilson, and will study marine zoology at the University of Michigan. Miss Nusbaum will study English and American Literature at Columbia or Harvard. Mr. Remsberg will not use his fellowship until year after next, when he will study diplomatic history at Yale. He holds a Rotary Foundation Fellowship to the London School of Economics for the coming academic year. Mr. Remsberg was an Alumni Scholar at the University.

William R. Kintner, Deputy Director of the University of Pennsylvania's Foreign Policy Research Institute, will address a Faculty Colloquy in Lisner Auditorium's Lower Lounge on May 14 at 12:30 p.m. Dr. Kintner's subject will be "Morality and Foreign Policy." He is the fourth scholar to speak in this year's series of Faculty Colloquies, sponsored by the University Chapel.

A $50 a semester increase in tuition beginning with the fall semester of 1963-1964 was announced by University President Carroll in March. The increase applies to all colleges, schools, and divisions of the University. "In the face of a need to maintain, indeed to improve, the high quality of its education, The George Washington University has no alternative but to institute a modest tuition increase to meet rising costs," Dr. Carroll said. "Strong efforts will be continued to increase the University's gift and grant income and to provide financial assistance to students."

Leslie A. Hubbard, graduate student at the University, was recently awarded the Washington Personnel Association's "Ernest V. Connolly Memorial Award" for outstanding achievement in the study of personnel administration.

A six-week Speech and Drama Institute for high school students in the greater Washington area will be conducted at the University this summer, beginning June 25. The Institute will include courses in voice improvement and public speaking and workshops in forensics and the theater.

"Hootenanny," ABC-TV's new network show featuring the leading folk singers in the country, chose George Washington University students as an audience for one of its first shows, video-taped at Arena Stage in February. Telecast of the series began this month.

Brunch will be served at the annual meeting of Columbian Women, Saturday, May 18, at 10 a.m. in the Alumni Lounge.

Faculty Notes

University President Thomas H. Carroll headed the Advisory Committee on the Role of Government in Aeronautical Charting which reported in March to the Secretary of Commerce that surveying, mapping, and charting are proper functions of the Government because these activities are vital to the public interest and safety. . . . Dean Martin A. Mason of the School of Engineering and Applied Science was recently elected a Director of Washington Technological Associates, Inc., Rockville, Md. . . . Jack Kleh, Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine, was recently elected to the Washington Heart Association's Board of Directors. . . . Virginia R. Kirkbride, formerly Director of Women's Activities, and Paul V. Bissell, formerly Director of Men's Activities, have been named the University's Dean of Women and Dean of Men, respectively.

Blake S. Root, Professor of Education and Acting Dean of the School of Education, served as a seminar panelist at the annual meeting of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City, N. J., in February—the subject: "Meeting the Challenge to Make Our American Democracy Work in a Highly Industrial, Technical, and Complex Culture." . . . Ben A. Lindberg, Professor of Engineering and Applied Science, spoke on "Personnel Management and Training" at American University's 15th Institute of Industrial Transportation and Traffic Management in March.

Tenth Annual Institute on Government Contracts

The Tenth Annual Institute on Government Contracts, co-sponsored by the National Law Center of the University and the Federal Bar Association, will be held May 2 and 3 at the University's Lisner Auditorium.

The Institute this year will consider three topics: alternate remedies available to a Government contractor; the problems involved in state and local taxation of Government contractors; and the new Contractor's Certificate of Current Cost or Pricing Data with the related audit and records provisions.

A group of distinguished speakers and panelists selected from industry, government, law schools, and the practicing bar will participate in the Institute.

versity during this year: John W. Brewer, Professor of International Law; Richard B. Castell, Director of Health Services; Arlin R. Johnson, Professor of Business Administration; Solomon Kullback, Professor of Statistics; Wolfram K. Legner, Professor of German; John B. Marbury, Associate in Medicine; Thomas M. Peery, Professor of Pathology; and Donald H. Stubbs, Clinical Professor of Anesthesiology.

The evening will begin at 6:30 with a dutch treat cocktail reception, followed by a dinner at 7:30. Reservations at the moderate cost of $5.00 each may be made through the Alumni Office, 2000 H Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C. Dress will be informal. For those who do not wish to drive or take other transportation, a chartered bus will leave the Alumni Office at 6:15. Those who wish this service should request it when making their reservations. Checks should be made payable to The George Washington University General Alumni Association.

Alumni and their friends and families are invited to attend the dinner and see redeveloped Southwest Washington, which is fast becoming one of the showplaces of the Capital. The Sky-line Inn is one of its latest additions.

The dinner constitutes the Annual Meeting of the GAA, and a short business session is included in the program. Please make reservations early.

Colonials All-Sports Banquet

Bill McPeak, coach of the Washington Redskins, will be the principal speaker at the annual athletic banquet sponsored by The Colonials, Inc., to be held at the National Press Club on April 23, at 6:30 p.m.

Highlights will be the presentation of the three major awards made annually to Colonial football and basketball stars of the past seasons. The Tuffy Lee-mans trophy, originated by Foster Hagan, will go to the outstanding senior; the Campbell-Kaufman award, presented by GW's grid broadcasters of Station WOL, goes to the most valuable football player; and the Tommy O'Brien trophy, donated by Joe Brennan, will be presented to the most valuable courtman. All three are chosen by their teammates.

Over 100 GW athletes representing football, basketball, baseball, crew, golf, and tennis will be guests of the Colonials.

"Let each of us look in our own minds and hearts and determine whether in our case liberty has become an occasion for sensuality or pleasure, or group pressure and self-interest demands more than a means of self-fulfillment through responsible citizenship and brotherhood.

"Let us ask honestly if our spirit of enjoyment is greater than our spirit of service.

"Let us ask honestly if our desire to have is greater than our desire to give.

"Let us ask honestly if we are prepared to blend our own good with the good of all voluntarily."

GEORGE ROMNEY
Governor of Michigan

The above quotation is from Governor Romney's inaugural address. Michigan's new Governor attended the University in 1930, and received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science at George Washington's June 1961 Commencement.

Engineer's Week Success

Over six hundred visited the School of Engineering and Applied Science during Engineer's Week, February 18-23, to view exhibits and laboratory demonstrations, some constructed by students and others provided by Government agencies and leading engineering firms.

Visitors were asked to choose both the student and commercial exhibit they thought most interesting. The Materials Laboratory cement crushing test proved the most popular among the student-constructed exhibits, closely followed by the hydraulic pump exhibit of the Fluid Laboratory. Most popular among commercial exhibits were the heart pump supplied by Harry Diamond Laboratories and the Navy Space Surveillance exhibit.

Engineering alumni and students, after a reception at the National Lawyers Club on Tuesday evening, February 19, gathered at Lisner Auditorium to hear Engineering Dean Martin A. Mason, recipient of this year's Distinguished Engineer Alumnus Award, discuss the development of engineering education and emphasize the need for liberalizing the engineering and science curricula of today. "What must be sacrificed," said Dean Mason, "are the sacred cows of higher education, the little empires of special interest . . . and the dead hand of educational tradition. The reality of life must enter the classroom—not as an intermittent peristaltic stimulant of the educational process but as a vital element in the determination of educational goals and their achievement."

Research

New research projects at the University include the following:

"Home Study Program for Administrators of Facilities for the Elderly," under a grant of $66,642 for the first year of a tentative three-year grant from the Bureau of State Services of the United States Public Health Service. Principal Investigator, Frederick H. Gibbs, Professor of Hospital Administration.

"Common Origin in Human Cell-virus System of Anti-metabolite Resistant and Virus Nucleic Acids," under a grant of $5,000 from the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund. Principal Investigator, Ariel C. Hollinshead, Assistant Research Professor of Medicine (Pharmacology).

"Regulation of Cholesterol Ester Levels in Blood and Tissues," under a grant of $33,174 from the National Heart Institute. Principal Investigators, Carleton R. Treadwell, Professor of Biochemistry, and George V. Vahouny, Associate Professor of Biochemistry.

"The Effect of Relevant Emotional Content on Performance and Learning in Programmed Instruction," under a grant of $39,349 from the United States Office of Education. Principal Investigator, Lawrence E. Schlesinger, Associate Research Professor of Psychology.

James C. King, Associate Professor of German, is gathering material and conducting research on modern German dialects at Marburg, Munster, Hamburg, and Berlin, under a grant from the German Academic Exchange Service.

The University's Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation is engaged in a series of studies on the role of industrial and intellectual property in Latin America and its contribution toward responsible economic development in that area with assistance from United States public and private sources. An interim report on this study, "Industrial Property in Latin American Development," by L. James Harris, Executive Director of the Foundation, and Irving H. Siegel, member of the Foundation's Research Staff, appears in the current issue of the Foundation's Journal of Research and Education.

tics at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies; Ralph L. Powell, Director of the Program in Overseas Representation and Professor of Far Eastern Studies at American University's School of International Service; and Abdul A. Said, Associate Professor of International Relations at American University's School of International Service.

The Seminar will be divided into two sessions, one from 10 to 12 in the morning and one from 2 to 4 in the afternoon. The morning session will be devoted to a discussion of the changes in the communist world; in the afternoon the repercussions of these changes in the West and the non-aligned countries will be examined. In each session, one hour will be devoted to statements and discussion by the panel members, and one hour to questions from the audience. Special emphasis will be given to Khrushchev's reforms in the Soviet Union and the effect of these reforms on the communist bloc and the international communist movement, particularly in the area of Sino-Soviet relations.

Alumni who attend the Seminar are invited to attend Commencement in the evening in the University Yard at 8 o'clock, unless inclement weather necessitates the moving of the exercises to Constitution Hall, where space is limited. President Henry C. Heald of the Ford Foundation will deliver the Commencement address.

The University's Institute of Sino-Soviet Studies, which was established last fall, provides graduate work leading to both Master's and Doctor's degrees. There are 75 students registered for Institute courses this semester. Next fall, course offerings will be expanded further and will include such subjects as the Sino-Soviet bloc in world affairs, the political thought of socialism and communism, the East European satellites, operational techniques of international communism, Communist China's role in the communist movement, Soviet foreign policy, Soviet military policy and strategy, the communist bloc in Far Eastern international politics, economic organization of the communist orbit, Sino-Soviet geography, and the social psychology of communism.

The first of a series of visiting professors will arrive at the University next fall for teaching and research. Professor Franz Michael of the Far Eastern and Russian Institute of the University of Washington, internationally known Sinologist, will be in residence during the fall semester, and Professor George Taylor, Director of Washington's Far Eastern and Russian Institute, will be in residence during the spring semester.

The Institute is also sponsoring a series of research studies. Already under way are studies on the economic relations of the Soviet Union and Communist China, comparative communist systems, and the Soviet view of international law.

Seventh Annual Public Conference of The Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation—June 20 & 21

The Seventh Annual Public Conference of the University's Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation will be held June 20 and 21 at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington.

This year's conference theme is "Fostering and Rewarding the Inventor in the Company, the Government, and the University." The concept of invention includes all manifestations of purposeful creativity, such as scientific discovery, patentable and unpatentable inventions, engineering development, employee suggestions.

The first session of the conference, on the afternoon of June 20, will be devoted to Government-Organization Interaction. The second session, late in the afternoon of the 20th, will deal with International Comparison. The third session, on the morning of the 21st, will have as its topic Organization-Individual Confrontation. Each session will present invited contributors, plus members of the Foundation's research staff, in both formal presentations and panel discussions, followed by questions from the audience.

The Annual Kettering Award Dinner will be held the night of the 20th, with Dr. Joseph W. Barker, 1962 Kettering Award winner, delivering the principal address.

WILLIAM C. MELOY, MD 28, Associate in Surgery at the University, died at his home in Washington on March 15. Dr. Meloy, a native of Seattle, Wash., was a graduate of the University of Maryland and held a Master of Science degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Until last year, he was Chairman of the Plastic Surgery Service at the Washington Hospital Center, and from 1945 to 1956 he was Chief of Plastic Surgery at the University Hospital. He had maintained a private practice in Washington since the early 1930's. During World War II, with the Marine Corps, he was decorated for gallantry under fire during the Bougainville invasion.

LYMAN J. BRIGGS, ScD 37, Honorary Trustee of the University, died at his home in Washington on March 25. Dr. Briggs, a pioneer in atomic energy research, had completed 49 years of Government service when retired in 1945, including 12 as head of the Bureau of Standards. He was chairman of a committee whose research aided in the development of the atomic bomb. Out of this committee grew the Manhattan Project and later the Atomic Energy Commission. A native of Michigan, Dr. Briggs earned his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Michigan State College, and his Doctorate at Johns Hopkins University. Among his many scientific accomplishments were pioneering in the study of X-rays, the invention (with Paul R. Heyl) of the earth inductor compass, experiments in air-flow and aerodynamics which led to improved aircraft propeller design, work in a series of stratospheric balloon launchings with the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps, and studies which devised a means for measuring the gravity of the sea. Among his many awards were the Magellan Medal of the American Philosophical Society, the Medal of Merit, and the National Geographic Society's Franklin L. Burr Award.

Colonial Sports

Washington's public tennis courts at 16th and Kennedy Streets, N. W., will be the scene of the Southern Conference tournament next month, and the Colonials' squad is given a good chance of successfully defending the championship it won last year. Coach Bill Shreve's squad, with only one member of last year's title team missing, has given signs of again being a contender, and the matches here on May 6, 7, and 8 will determine whether GW wins its fifth conference title in eight years. Harvey Harrison is the Colonials' number one man, and he teams with Jerry Rudy, the number two player, as the top doubles team. Prior to the tournament here GW will have played in the annual Cherry Blossom tournament and met such foes as Navy, Virginia, Lafayette, and Southern Conference rivals.

GW's baseball team also must be considered a contender for the conference title, as Coach Bill Rinehart had five lettermen and a handful of promising sophs on hand as the season began late in March. Merv "Bearcat" Holland (who also doubles as GW's quarterback) and John Papanicolas head a mound staff which includes promising southpaws Steve Baer and Neil Hausig. As in the past few years, GW's home games are played on the West Ellipse.

The University's golf team, under the tutelage of athletic director Bob Faris, does not have as rosy an outlook as the tennis and baseball squads. Bob Haney, Bob Murphy, Seth Rosen, and Steve Rubin need additional help before the team can hope to win consistently.

GW's three crews are on the Potomac each morning at 6:30 under the direction of Commander "Sandy" Sanborn and could surprise some people this spring. The big local race comes on May 4, when American, Georgetown, and Howard will be met over the Potomac River course.

Lettermen Club Calendar

April 27—Alumni-Varsity Football Game, Washington-Lee High School Field, Arlington, Va.

May 15—Lettermen's Hall of Fame will admit two new members at Athletic Department Awards Night, Lisner Auditorium.

June 17—Annual golf outing, morning and afternoon, Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Kensington, Md., followed by buffet and annual meeting, including raffle, with proceeds going to the Athletic Scholarship Fund.

Philadelphia Alumni Dinner

The University's Philadelphia Alumni Club will meet for dinner on May 22 at the Yale Club, 1522 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, at 6 p.m. Speaker will be John A. Brown, Jr., the University's Vice President for Plans and Resources.
